Roy Harris Tells G.E.A., F.B. To Not Forget Local Problems During Crisis

Roy Harris, former Speaker of the House of Representatives of the State of Georgia, told members of the Bulloch county unit of the Georgia Educational Association at Brooklet on Wednesday night of last week that we must not forget our local problems, the education and training of our youth, the raising of the standards of our living, even in the present struggle for survival against the constant pressure of Communism to dominate the world.

Mr. Harris addressed the Brooklet Farm Bureau immediately after his talk to the county teachers. He was presented to both groups by F. Everett Williams, senator-elect from the 49th senatorial district.

Lester Atkins, president of the teachers' organization, presided at the meeting held in the Brooklet Community House, and presented Mr. Williams. Others at the speaker's table were H. W. Pomack, county school superintendent; J. H. Griffith, principal of Brooklet schools; Sam Graham, representative from Richmond county; Norman Lawrence, of the Georgia Power Co., Augusta; A. J. Trapp, Bulloch county representative; Rev. Cassidy, and Leedle Coleman.

Using figures compiled by Jesse D. Jewell, of Gainesville, president of the Georgia State Chamber of Commerce, Mr. Harris told the more than 150 Bulloch county school teachers that it is good business to invest in education.

He pointed out that in 1948 the average per capita income in the United States was $1,410. In Georgia, the per capita income was $971. He added, "If each person in Georgia had received the United States average income, it would have amounted to $439 more per capita. This would be a total annual increase of $1,317,000,000 in the income of citizens of the state."

He deplored the fact that Georgia spends only $112 per pupil (based on average daily attendance), while New York State pays $212 per pupil in average daily attendance, with other states spending from $200 to $300.

He placed the blame for our low per capita income on these figures, for our per capita income is in direct proportion to the amount we spend on public education (to control red spiders).

Mr. Harris then reviewed the story of the Minimum Foundation Program for Education. He related how it was conceived, how Dr. C. A. Adenhold made the survey and conducted the study of the idea, and how it was adopted and written into the law in 1949. "But it has never yet been financed," he said.

Mr. Harris is all for the Minimum Foundation program. He believes in it wholeheartedly. He emphasized the need for better school plants, for expanded programs of vocational training, and for providing better salaries for teachers.

"We must make this investment in the education of the youth of our state," he said.

He then told the teachers that Negroes in one-third of the counties of Georgia have filed petitions asking for school facilities equal to those in the white schools. "We are trying to uphold the doctrine of equal but separate facilities," he explained. "And unless we go into the courts with an intelligent plan, and show that we intend to provide equal facilities, separate, we'll see segregation done away with now."

It was then that he said that it is going to take every man and woman in Georgia paying their equal share, according to their ability and said part of the answer is a sales tax.

He revealed that 90 percent of the taxes in the state are paid by 20 percent of the families of the state. The Negroes, constituting one third of the state's population, are paying less than three percent of the taxes.

In closing, he said that improving the school situation in Georgia will take many years and a great deal of effort.

In his informal talk to members of the Brooklet Farm Bureau, he again stressed the points made before the teachers' organization.

Abandoned school buildings can still be the hub of community activities, if the action by various groups in the Ogeechee, Denmark, and Esala communities can be taken as a guide and pattern.

Generally, the school in any community is a point of common interest and is the community activity in which everyone is interested. Community life, more or less, revolves around the school because of the common feeling everyone has for the school. Generally, the type community that exists in any given area can be fairly well predicted by seeing the school and the activities around the school.

When enrollment dropped at Ogeechee, Denmark, and Esala, county with other conditions, and forced the communities to give up their schools, other groups moved into the buildings and made them into community centers. Community life is still centered around the school buildings.

The Home Demonstration Club, Farm Bureau, and Associated Women all cooperated in the Ogeechee and Denmark program. The Farm Bureau took the lead at Esala. Ogeechee now has a modern lunchroom, with two large dining halls, an assembly hall, and has converted the old lunchroom into a meeting place for the Home Demonstration Club. Rugs and curtains, along with appropriate decorations, have been used to make the rooms more attractive. Denmark has renovated the lunchroom to take care of large crowds at the Farm Bureau meetings. Play groups have been set up for the youngsters so that they can be out of the regular meetings. Esala has developed their school building along the same lines as Denmark. These three community schools are still alive, even though school is not taught there any more.

Officers will be elected at this annual meeting.

John T. Nesmith, secretary of the organization, announced that turkey will be served from 7 to 8 p. m. "It has been our custom for 30 years to serve turkey at our annual communication," he said.

Marvin G. Pound, of Sparta, Georgia, Master of Georgia Masons, was guest speaker at the lodge's annual Ladies' Night banquet held Friday evening, December 8.

Rev. John S. Lough, pastor of the Methodist Church, announced that his sermon Sunday morning at 11 o'clock will be "The Magic of Christmas." Youth Fellowship will meet at 6:30 Sunday evening.

At the 7:30 evening worship hour the Statesboro Music Club will present its annual Christmas cantata.

Max Lockwood Tells Rotarians Of Needs Of Statesboro, Nation's Youth

In a talk to the Statesboro Rotarians on Monday of this week, Max Lockwood, director of the city's recreation program, painted a word picture of the needs of the youth of Statesboro and the state and nation.

Using figures, he emphasized the need of providing proper recreation facilities for young people and adults.

His picture of the local situation looked good compared to other sections. The entire text of Mr. Lockwood's talk follows:

"Most of us are aware of the program we have for our youth in Statesboro and Bulloch county. I would like to take this opportunity to discuss our needs on a broader level and to look at the needs of the youth of the state and national level, and to make comparison where possible.

"In this day and time, it is easier to attract the attention of a group of businessmen when they begin to talk to them through their pocketbook. I would like to take just a minute to show you the cost of delinquency to the citizens of our state for both youth and adults for the period of only 12 months.

"The latest figures we have are for 1947, what we might call one of our best years as far as our economy is concerned. In that year, Georgia spent $2,500,000 on crime delinquency. In the same year, Fulton county and the City of Atlanta alone spent over $3,000,000 on this same problem. It is easy to see that the total cost to the state in dollars and cents would run into many times this amount. This does not consider the loss to the state in potential contributions to the state welfare or the moral breakdown in our communities, or the anguish to individuals of the community, or the adverse influence on the whole community.

"The sad fact is that delinquency is on the increase all over the United States.

"In 1948, the Georgia Citizens Council released a report compiled with the cooperation of the Attorney General and the Federal Bureau of Investigation, entitled 'Working Together, We Can Remove the Causes of Juvenile Delinquency, Crime.' If we look at this problem only from an economic view, without considering the human element, we can see that it would be well worth our while to do something about the problem facing us. I believe that as Georgians we will survive this situation and will do something about it. It is not a question of whether it can be done; rather, it is a question of whether we will take the trouble to do it.

"This report shows in plain figures that 76 percent of all the juvenile delinquency cases in 1947 were referred to any supervised playground or youth organization, such as Scouts, Y's, or other organizations.

"The report also shows that these character-building organizations are the trouble to do it.

Youth Activities

Drag On Inn Club Continues to Grow: Dight Spence Is Elected 'Dog Catcher'

The Drag On Inn Club continued to grow last week as many new members paid dues for December.

The gang really had fun with the dancing and games. Dight Spence and Buddy Brewster ran a close race for "dog catcher" for the City of Statesboro when they made speeches for the honored position. The winner, Dight Spence, was elected by the audience. C. P. Claxton won the quiz contest and was given a beautiful watch from the Dime Store as first prize. The Fortune Wheel smiled on everyone as it told fortunes. One fortune read: In ten years you will have false teeth; buy them now at the College Pharmacy and get a 10 percent discount.

This Friday night the club will attend the Statesboro-Savannah game and will meet at the Center following the game for a reception.

BROWNIE CHRISTMAS PARTY

At their last meeting, the Brownies really had fun fixing the decorations for their Christmas tree. The tree is beautifully decorated with things the Brownies made—silver balls and bells, long white strings of popcorn, and other trinkets and strings of chains made from colored tinfoil. The Brownies had their Christmas party this week and there was fun for all as they gathered 'round the tree for their presents and refreshments.

The girls were served potato chips, Christmas candies, coconut macaroons, individual cakes, and hot chocolate. Favors were silver bells tied with red ribbons. The children had drawn names for gifts and these were distributed for the lovely tree.

Enjoying the festive occasion were Glenda Banks, Faye Brannan, Amelia Brown, Virginia and Melba Chapman, Sylvia Clontz, Sara Groover, Mary Ann and Sandra Hodges, Mary Prosser, Shirley and Katherine Turner, Hazel Thompson, Martha Lewis, Barbara Brunson, Maxine Brunson, Bobbie Faye Shelnett, Jean Collins, June Rushing, Jane Smith, Diane Williams, Ruth Dickerson, and Ruby Lee Steptoe.

Will Your Child Also Need "Glass Crutches?"

If you now have a child in school, the odds are one in three that before he finishes high school he will need glasses or some other form of visual correction, unless his poor seeing environment is corrected.

Studies by eminent authorities have disclosed that old-fashioned seating, blackboards, and misplaced light actually aggravate or create visual defects.

Georgia has come a long way, but like most other States it has thousands of classrooms which, visually speaking, are "handicapped" from the "little red schoolhouse" era. Demands on the eyes have increased 15-fold since 1900, and improvements in classroom seeing environments have not kept pace.

Fortunately, a move is under way to correct this situation through the Minimum Foundation for Education. By all means, it should be financed without delay.

Your child should not have the handicap of a poor seeing environment. Does his classroom conform to these rules:

(1) Plenty of even light with no glare.
(2) Seats and desks to fit the child.
(3) Maximum use of natural light.
(4) Painting and wood finishes light, but not too shiny.
(5) Pastel chalkboards—for instance green with yellow chalk—to prevent absorption of light and visual distortion.

Our rural engineers have designed and helped to install electric hotbeds for hundreds of Georgia farms. These engineers can make kilowatts do more than 200 other farm chores...from hoisting heavy bales of hay to the tender brooding of baby chicks.

Every year thousands of Georgia farmers ask for and get the help of these skilled engineers at no cost. The results are greater farm production...larger farm profits...lower costs for labor.

Our rural engineers—and 5,000 other employees doing their jobs conscientiously and well—are an important part of the reason why Georgians get the best electric service available anywhere.

Jack Frost is still full of tricks but the farmer has a trick of his own. With an electric hotbed he can grow plants early and have them ready for the fields by Spring. Set a thermostat... flick a switch... gain a month on the calendar!

tentions were good." When he reached Bulloch, he discovered that his own Bulloch county house was destroyed. They both agreed that there has been a happy life all the way. "Right now," he went on, "we sit and talk about old times and laugh fit to kill." We were dressed to a queen's taste. And we saw the lovely anniversary cake. The Smiths were still talking. They weren't too keen about this formal way of modern society. But Mrs. Smith said, "If they'd let me go all over the house with them I wouldn't get so tired." It was even more difficult to keep Mr. Smith in line. He declared, "You know, this party took a lot of work. Why, I hardly ever go to Statesboro (his home is only about four blocks from the courthouse), but Saturday I had to make three trips."

Mr. Smith complained that, with the wind blowing, his wife had had to take the yards nearly every hour all day long. Anyway, when we saw him, he had a lovely yellow rose on his coat lapel and his wife, with her hair softly waved, wore a corsage of yellow chrysanthemums. And you know, we were seated at the table. Yes, we like our ice cream, pound cake, Christmas gifts, made a festive holiday setting.

The main course was turkey, with other traditional courses.

Appearing on the dinner program was Mrs. J. O. Johnston, who read, "Why the Chimes Rang." The guest speaker was Mrs. H. P. Jones, an exchange student at Georgia Teachers College. The entire group sang Christmas carols and were accompanied at the piano by Mrs. W. S. Hanner. Christmas gifts were exchanged.

Those present were Miss Helen Rowse, president; Miss Hattie Powell, Mrs. W. S. Hanner, Mrs.

J. O. Johnston, Mori Hegi, Miss Helen Brannen, Miss Zula Gammar, Miss Isabel Sorrier, Miss Ruby Lee Jones, Miss Anne Williams, Miss Grace Gray, Mrs. H. F. Hook, Mrs. LeRoy Shealey, Mrs. A. L. Waller, Miss Harriet Rough-ton, Mrs. Jack Gross, Dr. Helen Deal, Mrs. Frank DeLoach, Miss Sara Hall, Mrs. Stothard Deal, Miss Maud White, Miss Emily Dye, Miss Bernice Woodcock, Mrs. Janie Elberidge, Miss Pennie Allen, Miss Virginia Dougherty, Mrs. Brooks Sorrier Jr., Mrs. Pinky Anderson, Mrs. Dorothy Johnson, and Miss Imogene Flinders.

After dinner the guests sang and even practiced for numbers which were recorded by Mr. Averett. The guests, furnishing a lightful entertainment.

Guests were Mr. and Mrs. Grady Attaway, Mr. and Mrs. Devane Watson, Mr. and Mrs. Perry Kennedy, Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Jennings, Dr. and Mrs. D. L. Davis, Mr. and Mrs. Jimmy Collins, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Blitch, Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Kennedy, Mrs. and Mrs. Fred Fletcher, Mrs. and Mrs. Will Woodcock, Miss Leona Newton, and Mrs. Edna Neville.

and coffee while seated at a table centered with a lovely embossed wedding cake with huge yellow "mums nodding at us from a serving table nearby."

And next Sunday we may make it to another golden wedding anniversary. Mr. and Mrs. Hiram Bonnett, of Portau, are entertaining Sunday afternoon, December 17, at open house from 3 to 6. When I asked if they were natives of Bulloch, they said they came here from Aiken, S. C., when they were first married, fifty years ago. They want their friends and relatives to come. I do not know Mr. and Mrs. Bonnett, but I do know Mrs. Lemuel Bonnett, formerly Julia Cross, Screven county, and that furnishes me and incentive to be on hand.

As ever, JANE.

DINNER PARTY

On Thursday evening Mr. and Mrs. Percy Averett and Mr. and Mrs. Pim Donaldson were joint hosts at a turkey dinner at the Averett home.

Holly and red berries were used in the traditional manner throughout the home. The table, overlaid was a madras cutwork cloth, was centered with a crystal centerpiece with candles and Christmas greenery and red berries. The dinner was served from the table and the place cards were handpainted with the wreath and red candle Christmas motif.

After dinner the guests sang and even practiced for numbers which were recorded by Mr. Averett. The guests, furnishing a lightful entertainment.

Dexter Allen Post No. 90 to Sponsor Oratorical Contest on Americanism

An oratorical contest, dealing with Americanism topics, will be sponsored locally by the Dexter Allen Post No. 90 of The American Legion in Statesboro. Post Commander Joe Woodcock, who announced the contest, says that all boys and girls in the ninth, tenth, eleventh and twelfth grades in high schools in the community will be asked to participate.

All subjects in this contest deal with phases of the United States Constitution and each participant may choose his or her subject. Prepared speeches are to be between 10 and 12 minutes long.

Francis Trappnell has been appointed post oratorical contest chairman by the commander and will be in charge of arrangements for local finals, which must be completed by January 28, 1951.

Details on the exact time and place of the local contest will be announced as soon as final plans are decided upon, the chairman said.

Following local contests to be held all over Georgia, the same here, before January 28, there will be district, area and state finals, the latter in March.

The state winner will continue through sectional, regional and national contests, until eliminated, competing for a top national prize of $4,000 and several other cash awards, all to be used for educational purposes.

In the state contest, the prizes are $125 for the winner, $75 for the runner-up and $50 for the third place contestant.

The contest has been through-out the nation for the past 14 years by the national organization of the Legion. It has been conducted in Georgia in the past, as this year, by the state organization, State Commander John Brock, in asking the 336 Georgia posts to promote participation in all high schools in the state this year, described the contest as "one of the most effective instruments used. By getting our high school boys and girls, who will soon be running America, to study the U. S. Constitution and talk about it to their audiences, we bring out more of the real meaning of the freedom we enjoy—and how we got it and can keep it."

The aim of the contest is to re-emphasize the full meaning of the Constitution of the United States.

Air Force Accepts Men With Dependents

Major J. P. Glenn, commanding officer of the U. S. Army and U. S. Air Force Recruiting Service for this area, announced recently that the Air Force is now accepting male applicants with dependents.

This complete turnabout in enlistment regulations should be welcome news to the hundreds of applicants who have previously been rejected at recruiting stations.

According to the new regulations, Air Force male applicants, including those with prior service in the Army, Air Force, Marine Corps, and Coast Guard, having dependents may be enlisted in the Air Force if they are eligible to enlist in grade E-4 (Sergeant) or higher, with the following exceptions:

1. Male applicants from civilian life, including those with prior service, may be enlisted in grade E-1 (Private), E-2 (Private First Class) and E-3 (Corporal), if they have no more than two dependents.
2. Airmen currently serving, including reservists on extended active duty re-enlisting immediately, may be re-enlisted without regard to number of dependents.

By enlisting now, male applicants with dependents are eligible to receive the new dependency allowances which went into effect in August of this year.

Mrs. D. J. Denny, Mrs. Doris Cason, Mrs. John Akina, and Mrs. Ernest Roberts spent Tuesday in Savannah.

According to Josh T. Nesmith, secretary of the association, due to the severe cold weather Saturday, November 25, the meeting was adjourned until Saturday. The meeting will last about two hours.

According to Josh T. Nesmith, secretary of the association, due to the severe cold weather Saturday, November 25, the meeting was adjourned until Saturday. The meeting will last about two hours.

Now is the time for all good men to come to the aid of their pocketbooks

There's been a lot of talk in recent weeks about "the buying power of the dollar"—past, present and future.

We can't foretell the future—but we can tell you this right now:

You'll look a long way before you'll find a car that offers as much for the money as you can get in a 1950 Buick.

Close to half a million of these cars have been built and sold this year.

Close to half a million people have checked their features and prices against the field—and decided they'd better buy Buick.

As to prices—they start down below some sizes. And whether you price the SPECIAL, the SUPER or the ROADMASTER, you'll find, on a cents-per-pound basis, that few other cars can touch them for value.

And this is for sure! When it comes to performance—ride—the way they handle and hold the road—and thrifty use of fuel and oil—Buicks have never been finer.

That's another way of saying that coil springs on all four wheels—Dynaflo—torque-tube drive—and Buick's high-compression, high-economy Fireball power produce an out-of-this-world combination.

So if you want your dollars to do extra duty—the time to act is now.

Look at the price tags—look at the features—sample the power and thrill that you get for your money—and you'll know what we mean.

*Dynaflo Drive is standard on ROADMASTER, optional at extra cost on SUPER and SPECIAL models.

WHEN BETTER AUTOMOBILES ARE BUILT BUICK WILL BUILD THEM

So You Wanna Go Deer Hunting?

PEOPLE who do not appreciate the comforts of home should take up deer hunting. Too many of us light a pipe, after storing away a hot dinner, slip into comfortable shoes, pull up in front of a roaring fire, read the paper, listen to the radio or tune in a television program and just fall apart in sheer luxury. How can a fellow appreciate all of these joys of living if he has not experienced the hardships of a deer hunt?

The deer hunter spends the night in the mountains sleeping either on an army cot or on the ground, wrapped like a mummy in all the blankets he can lift. He shivers and shakes like a hula dancer all night. Chills race up and down his spine. A camp fire blazes perhaps a few feet away but he is too cold to get to it.

Shortly before dawn he drifts off into a fitful sleep, utterly overcome from complete exhaustion, chilled to the bone and probably dreaming of a soft mattress and soft pillows. A breakfast, whipped up by a pal who hasn't cooked anything in his life, is ready. It is a warm breakfast of burnt toast, eggs fried a la frazzle, bacon that could pass for shoe laces and black as tar, and coffee thickened with grounds and thinned with plenty of water.

The hunters gather around the fire and eat this get-up which at home they wouldn't feed to the dog. They swear by their cook and comment on the excellence of the food and often remark, "Wonder what the poor people are doing?" Actually, the poor people are home in a warm bed and soon will get up to enjoy a sane morning repast.

Often ice must be thawed to get water. Make no mistake about it, it's cold in the mountains. The boys take off, stumbling through the darkness to find a stand near a deer trail. One by one they take up their places. They are of good cheer apparently but their teeth are chattering and they lean the gun against the tree to blow on their frozen hands.

They must be perfectly still so as not to frighten away the deer but this leaves them wide open as a target for icy blasts that cut through their clothing. They hold their positions often for hours. Their eye lashes are frosted.

Here, friends, is your deer hunter. One of God's frozen people. Here is a character as miserable as man can be but without vocal complaint. If he doesn't get his deer, he is willing to repeat this schedule. It would take a great pile of cash to pay him to do these things but what he does costs him plenty and he does it because he loves it.

After a few days of this life, he returns home and with or without deer, he is in high spirits; says he had the best time of his life and can't wait for the next season. He is gentle and kind to his family, loves everybody and tries hard not to show he has been reduced to a physical wreck. He rips into home-cooked meals like a demon. If he moans, you can hear him for five miles. He drops off in bed and is asleep before you can snap your fingers. Now the warm and comfort of home really means something to him.

Yes, ladies, if you have a nattered husband, send him off on a deer trip. He will be a lamb for weeks to come and you can name your new outfit without a crumble from him.

In the recent regulated hunt in the Chattahoochee National Forest some 1480 deer hunters were on hand. Not all of them had the hardships heretofore mentioned. Some came along with trailers. Some had bottled gas heat, and tents were strung all over the Area. Big tents, little tents and back seats of automobiles were loaded with hunters. Some brought along as much luxury as possible, such as radios, plates, knives and forks, cups, drinking water, rubber air mattresses and enough clothes to last five years.

Some day a smart cookie is going into this area about deer hunting time with a supply of indigestion medicine. He can sell completely out at astonishing prices.

It's amazing how much trouble a sportsman will go to in an effort to make himself as miserable as humanly possible. It is a rare thing indeed to hear a hunter confess he did not have the "greatest time of my life." Be assured that a man on a hunt will enjoy good fellowship, courtesy on every hand and rub elbows with some of the finest men on earth. These boys who pound the forest trails are the most patient, dependable and likeable guys on earth.

Few women ever attempt a deer hunt. The few that do are cured and seldom return. They may be the weaker sex, but when you get right down to it, they also might be the smarter sex. And after all the trouble you go to and all the suffering, the only remark they have when you proudly bring home your buck is—"Poor thing. You ought to be ashamed of yourself."

Safety motto: "Matches have heads but no brains."

Farm Bureau

W. W. Jones Is Denmark F. B. Head; Middleground Keeps W. C. Hodges Jr.

W. W. Jones will head the Denmark Farm Bureau next year, and W. C. Hodges Jr. will again be president of the Middleground Farm Bureau. These communities elected officers last week.

Mr. Jones succeeds C. C. DeLoach as president at Warnock. R. M. Bragg was elected vice president and E. L. McDonald will be secretary of that group.

J. L. Deal was renamed secretary at Middleground and Fred M. Atkins was again elected vice president.

The Denmark group went on record, by standing vote, as asking that all groups such as this Farm Bureau discontinue any adverse criticism of the national administration's effort to prosecute the war in Korea and to support the effort 100 percent in every way possible. Their January 2 meeting is to be of a business nature. No supper will be served.

ROY HARRIS SPEAKS TO BROOKLET GROUP

Roy V. Harris, Augusta political leader, was the Brooklet Farm Bureau speaker Wednesday night of last week. Mr. Harris reviewed the state's educational program since the Reconstruction days and compared the present program in Georgia with that of other states.

He pointed out that states that spent most on education also had the highest per capita income. In Georgia, where $12 is spent each year per child on education, the per capita income is around $900, whereas in some of the nearby states that spend $200 per child

This guest columnist has just about "columned" out. But one final word. Believing that his column has but few male readers, I shall divulge to the ladies one of man's inmost secrets. Ladies, every man, except he be an incorrigible Casanova or a dedicated celibate, and both of these comprise but a small part of mankind, every man, for a truth, yearns to place himself under the subject of a sweet, discerning and pampering woman.

fast. And now the wife, who has patiently waited "seven lengths and seven breadths"—she's been awaiting a scythe!—for the husband to call her to dinner, decides to come and see what's wrong with the man. When she gets home and sees the cow "swinging between heaven and earth," she takes the scythe and cuts the rope, bringing down both husband and cow. Entering the kitchen, she finds her husband "standing on his head in the porridge pot."

To confess the truth, I should now be in a worse plight than the husband in the porridge pot, were it not for the fact that my mother-in-law turned up to help me out. Never again will I engage in the telling of jokes which involve mothers-in-law. I here and now forever ever telling again my favorite about the husband who called up the doctor and said, "Doc, my wife's mother is at death's door; please come quick and help."

H.V. Franklin Jr.

His ratproof cement block barn has a false wire floor and a drier made of three tobacco barn heating units. Fans force hot air from these units up through corn piled four feet deep on the false floor.

In 1949, when he entered the Institutional On-Farm training class at Register High School taught by L. G. Boddiford, H. V. set out on a plan to steadily improve his yields over a five-year period. That year he averaged slightly over 50 bushels on 120 acres. Last summer's long, dry spell just when corn was in the "making" stage kept him from equalling that yield in 1950. He has gathered as high as 80 bushels from an acre.

Hogs and cattle harvest any corn that H. V. "wastes" in the fields. Other crops on the Franklin farm include 30 acres cotton, 30 acres peanuts and four acres tobacco.

A self-styled bachelor who lives with his widowed mother; he is president of the Register Farm Bureau and she heads the local chapter of Associated Farm Bureau Women.

"When I was tinkering with my combine last summer," H. V. relates, "she kept protesting that it wasn't going to work and I couldn't waste so much time piddling with it."

Now that it works, Mrs. Franklin seems even more pleased than her son—Atlanta Journal-Constitution.

The Protestant ministers of Bulloch county met here December 11 and organized the Bulloch County Ministerial Association and elected the following officers:

Elder V. F. Agan, president; Rev. John S. Lough, vice president; and Rev. Carl H. Anderson, secretary-treasurer.

Others present at the organizational meeting were Elder Henry Waters, Rev. T. L. Harnsberger, Rev. E. A. Woods, Rev. E. T. Styles, Rev. Carl E. Cassidy, and Rev. George Lovell.

In announcing the purpose of the organization, a spokesman for the group said: "We are organized to promote Christian fellowship, understanding and appreciation; to cooperate in common objectives; to unite in service to our Lord through city and countywide union worship services, such as Thanksgiving, Christmas, and other special occasions; and correlation of our efforts and plans."

The association will meet on Monday after the first Sunday in each month at 11 o'clock on a quarterly basis of rotation of the various churches in the city. A devotional service will be held at each meeting as directed by the devotional committee in charge.

The next meeting will be held on January 8 at the First Baptist Church. Rev. Travis Styles will be in charge of the devotional.

The Statesboro Business and Professional Women's Club has assumed sponsorship of the annual Christmas Seal sale for Bulloch County.

Mrs. Janie Etheridge, who works at the Bulloch County Bank, has been named local chairman.

Mrs. Etheridge urges every person in the county to buy these seals to use on all mail during the Christmas holidays.

"Everyone is familiar with the Christmas Seal objectives," Mrs. Etheridge said. "But let's not lose sight of the fact that the program for fighting tuberculosis is ever-expanding, and that it needs everyone's support."

THE BULLOCH HERALD, THURSDAY, DEC. 14, 1950

if you have trouble starting your car TRY A GULF POWER-PAR BATTERY

Don't let a "weak sister" battery kill your pleasure or leave you stranded. Give yourself the thrill of surging power aplenty with Gulf's dynamic POWER-PAR Battery—"like the one that came with the car." You'll find it's eager to turn your engine over! And stays that way because of slow-cured plates that harden to greater shed-resistance! Modestly priced, and Gulf-guaranteed in writing. Come ask us all about POWER-PAR.

When all you see is what's outside, such marks of merit as the Orange Disc are more than ever your best guide

For "know-how" battery service, too!

THE BULLOCH HERALD

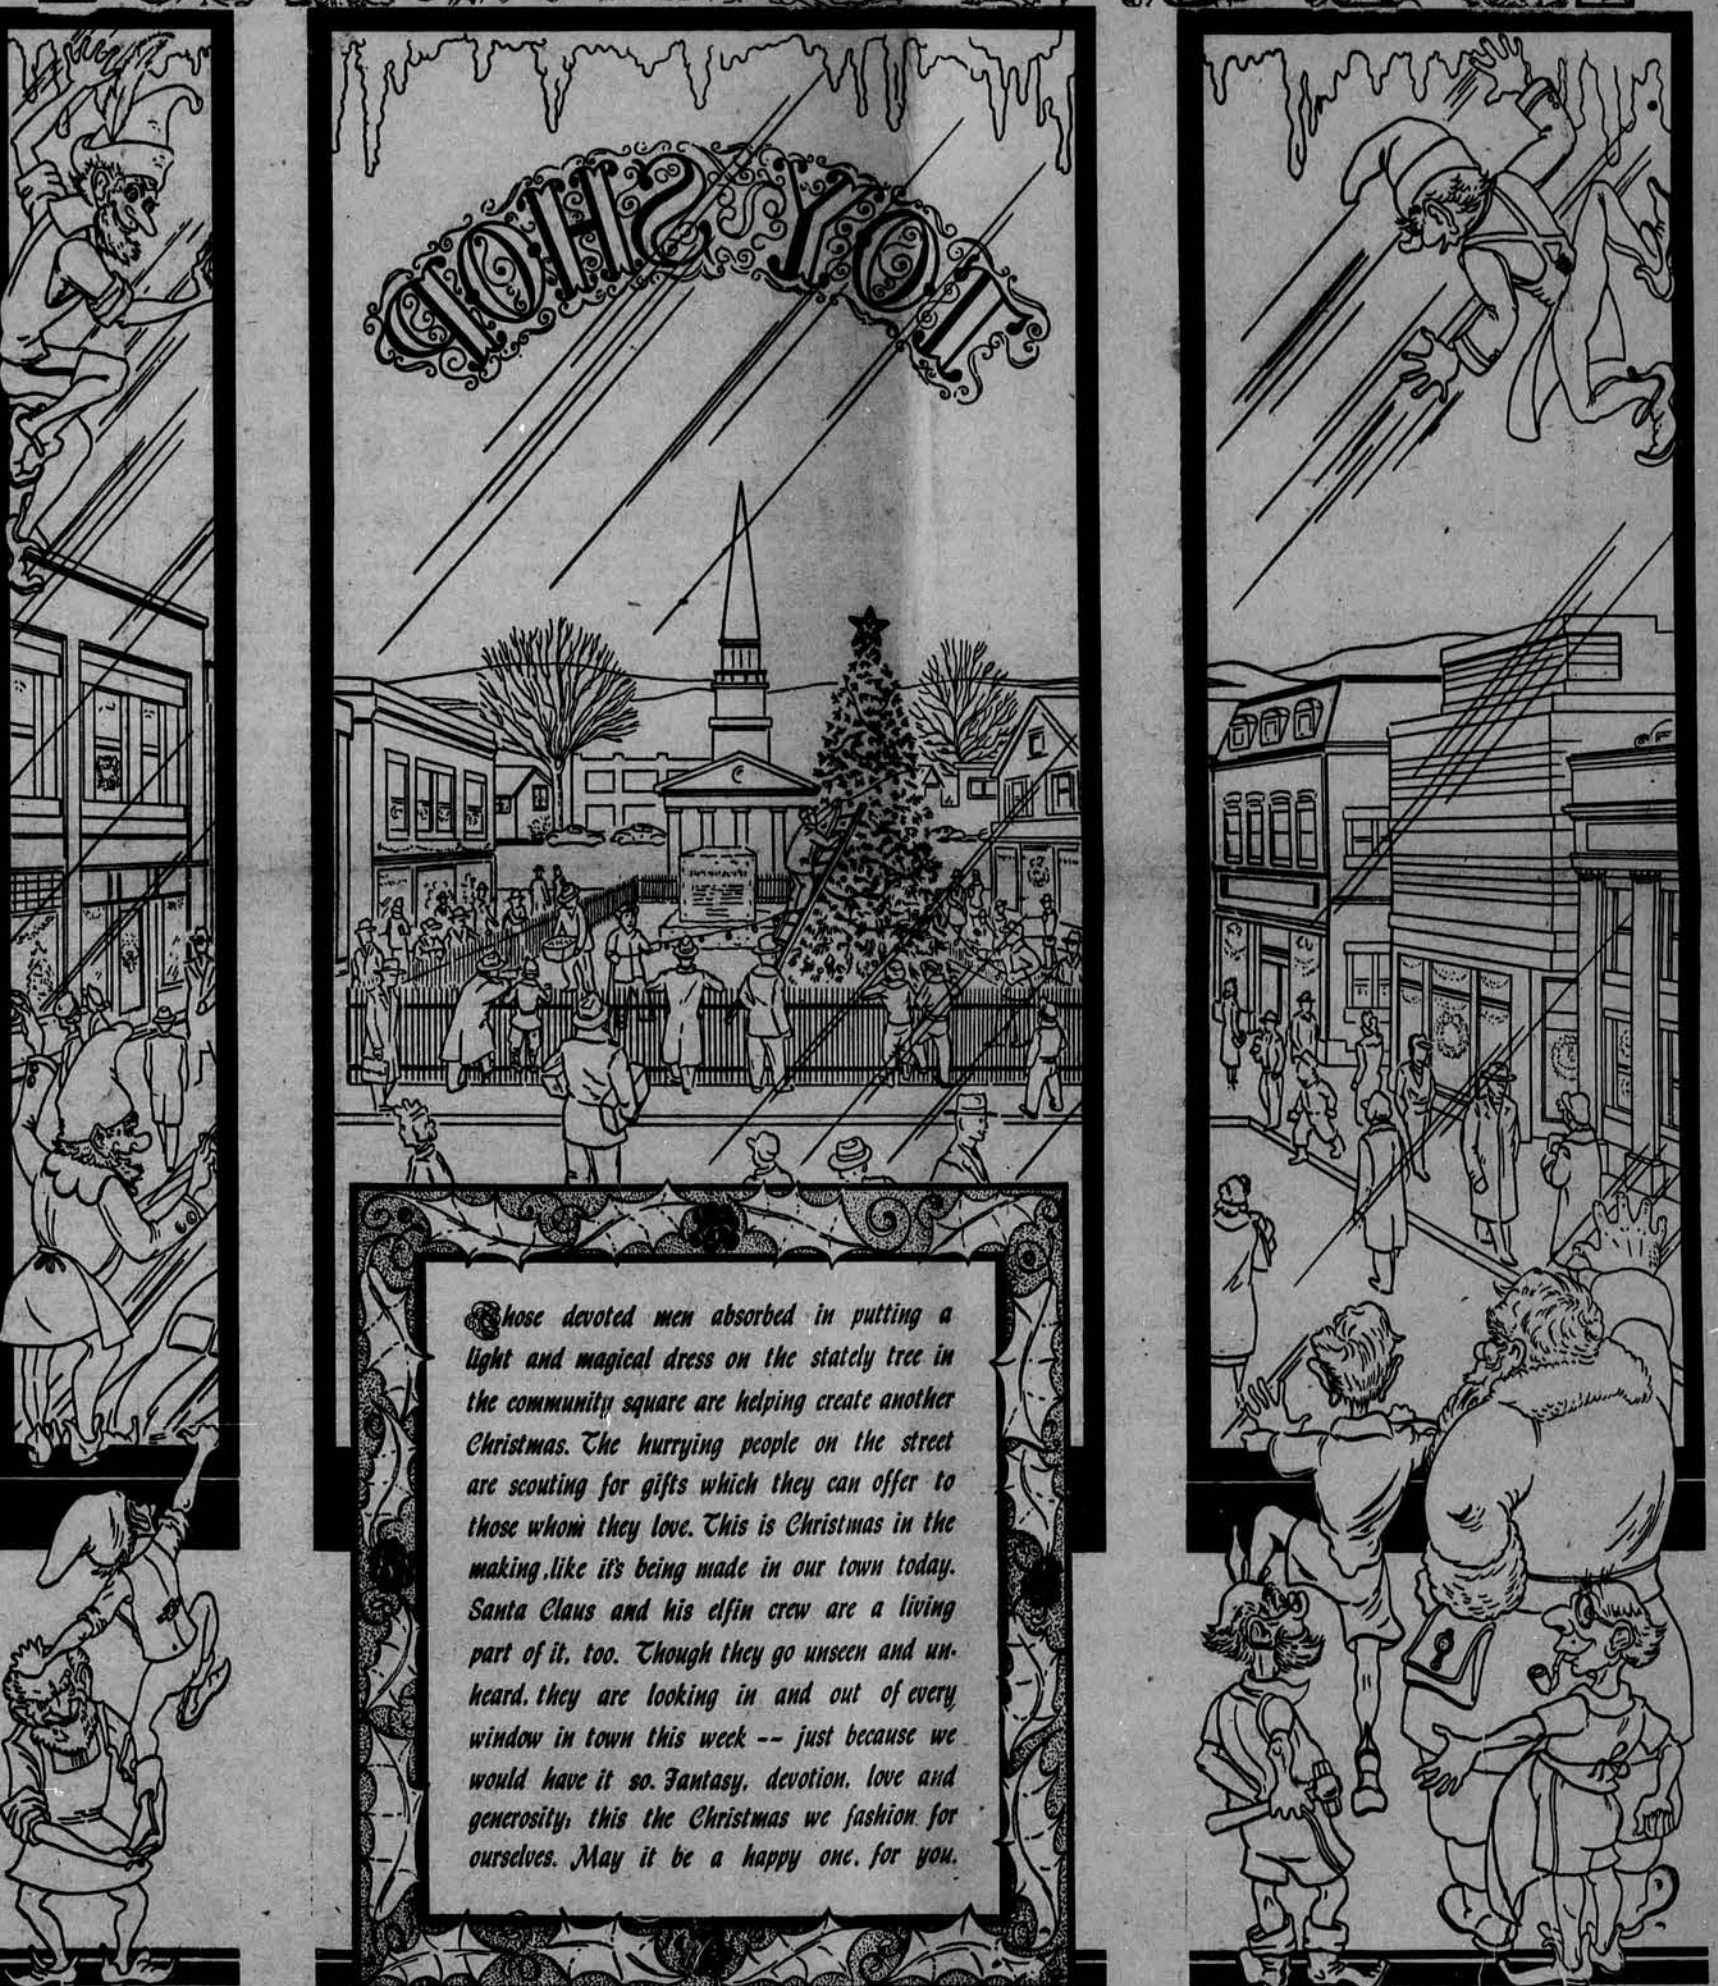

DEDICATED TO THE PROGRESS OF STATESBORO AND BULLOCH COUNTY

STATESBORO, GEORGIA, THURSDAY, DECEMBER 21, 1950

Bulloch County's Leading Newspaper

VOLUME XI

NUMBER 6

Those devoted men absorbed in putting a light and magical dress on the stately tree in the community square are helping create another Christmas. The hurrying people on the street are scouting for gifts which they can offer to those whom they love. This is Christmas in the making, like it's being made in our town today. Santa Claus and his elfin crew are a living part of it, too. Though they go unseen and unheard, they are looking in and out of every window in town this week -- just because we would have it so. Fantasy, devotion, love and generosity, this the Christmas we fashion for ourselves. May it be a happy one, for you.
